I used to walk like a stranger in my Father’s land,
Head hung low with empty hands.
But grace found me where I stood ashamed,
Now I carry His crown and wear His name.

I ain't bound by the lies they tell,
I'm a child of the King, I know it well!

Walk like royalty—head held high,
I’m covered in grace, sanctified.
Don’t need a throne, don’t need applause—
I walk with power ‘cause I walk with God.
Walk like royalty—stride with light,
He made me new, now I live in Christ!

I traded rags for robes of praise,
Took off the shame and walked away.
This ain’t pride—it’s confidence,
I know who I am and Who sent me in.

The crown don’t weigh me down—it lifts me up,
I walk in mercy, I overflow the cup!

Walk like royalty—head held high,
I’m covered in grace, sanctified.
Don’t need a throne, don’t need applause—
I walk with power ‘cause I walk with God.
Walk like royalty—stride with light,
He made me new, now I live in Christ!

I don’t walk in fear—no chains on me.
I don’t bow to shame—I’ve been set free.
I don’t need the crown to prove I’m known—
When the King is in me, I walk like His own!

Walk like royalty—faith on fire,
Every step ordained, every lift is higher.
This is my birthright, sealed in blood—
I walk with power, I walk in love.
Walk like royalty—yeah, that’s my call...
I don’t crawl—I stand tall!
