I didn't get a lightning flash,
No trumpet sound to shake my past.
No writing in the sky appeared,
But still I felt that God was near.
I stood there praying for a sign,
Something bold, a neon line—
But all I heard was still and small...
And that was more than enough.

It was a God nod—just a whisper in my soul.
Not a shout, but I knew where to go.
Didn't move the earth, but it moved me—
That quiet “yes” set my spirit free.
I didn't need a thunderous plot—
Just the peace of a God nod.

I've walked through doors I could've feared,
But faith stepped out, 'cause God was near.
He didn't push or pull me through—
Just gave me peace—I knew what to do.
No flash, no fire, no parted sea—
Just heaven nodding quietly.
And now I see it clearly:
Obedience starts in subtle things.

It was a God nod—just a stillness deep inside.
Not a sign, but a Shepherd's guide.
Didn't split the sky, didn't part the waves—
But I took a step and walked by faith.
I didn't need a booming God—
Just the whisper of a God nod.

He knows my name, He knows my pace,
He leads my heart with quiet grace.
I used to wait for something loud—
But now I trust the stillness now.

It was a God nod—and it changed my life.
One silent yes, and I said mine.

No fear, no fame, no grand applause—
Just peace confirming it was God.
I didn't need the fire or flood—
Just a faithful, quiet... God nod.
Just a God Nod.
